Mission Station Gets Help

Donald J. Pate, '73, R. R. Aussner (sponsor of the Nicaragua Mission project), Richard E. Pomeroy, '73 (new worker at the mission), John Durichek, '58, (works with the group in Nicaragua each summer), and four students from Madison Elementary School who came to bring the books and clothing the 7th and 8th graders had collected for Nicaragua.

Donald J. Pate, '73, seventh grade teacher at Madison, Tennessee, elementary school, who was a missionary to SMC's Nicaragua project, got the seventh and eighth graders at Madison interested in the Nicaragua Mission. They collected used books and clothing to send down to the school in Puerto Cabezas, about 75 miles from the location of the SMC project. The school has around 300 students including those who attend night classes. It is practically self-supporting and is one of the neediest in Central America. Most of the students are from non-Adventist homes and are of mixed races—Indian, Spanish and Negro. The Madison students collected 25 boxes each of books and clothing for them.

Richard E. Pomeroy, '73, and his wife, Meredith, left the early part of February for Francia Sirpi, the headquarters for the SMC project, with the books and clothing, in a Dodge 16' van with a GMC V-8 engine which has been completely overhauled. They also took a 12 kilowatt generator worth over $3,000 wholesale and used only about 52 hours. This was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth McKee. This generator will furnish electricity for the clinic, the house and other public buildings and still have some to spare. The generator is quite necessary for the clinic.

The mission also needed another jeep and when Dr. Richard Chandler, an Orlando dentist, learned of their need, he found a jeep with 21,000 miles on it and then he wrote to friends and colleagues asking for money to pay for it. The money was forthcoming and the jeep purchased. The jeep was attached to the Dodge van as a trailer for the trip. They also took examining tables and other equipment for the clinic.

Names of those students who would like to work at the mission station this summer have been received and selections will be made shortly.

Enrollment Sets New Record

Second semester registration at Southern Missionary College remains at a record high with 1,488 students, according to Dr. Arno Kutzner, director of admissions and records.

First semester brought the total to 1,555 students. With transfers and a few who have dropped for this semester, the enrollment is less, but the dormitories remain full.

Of the total, 294 are seniors, 314 juniors, 311 sophomores and 427 freshmen. The remainder of the students are special curricula or extension students.

The field of endeavor having the highest number is nursing with 421 enrolled. Both elementary and secondary education list 224, theology and religion 150, business administration 72, pre-medicine 102, and pre-dentistry with 23. The college's newer field, construction technology, has 31 students on the roll.

SMC Offers Terminal Courses

Since people are coming more and more to recognize that a college degree in most cases should prepare one for some means of making a living, colleges have taken a second look at their curricular offerings.

For those students who do not choose a four-year course, SMC is offering two-year terminal courses. In the 1972-73 school year an associate degree in construction technology was offered for the first time. This course flourished. Last year students built one large house which was sold at a good profit and this year they are building three large houses in the same area.

Next year a general technology course will be offered which will prepare one for general maintenance work around one of our academies or hospitals.

A two-year course in music with emphasis on applied music and not so much on theory, will be offered for those who would like to teach music privately at home.

The home economics department will offer an associate degree program in foods and nutrition.

SMC, Collegedale on TV

Recently, President Frank Knittel and Collegedale Mayor Fred Fuller appeared on the local television program, "Backyard Safari." The purpose of the program, which is hosted by Bob Elmore, the director of the Visitors and Convention Bureau of Greater Chattanooga, is to point out places of interest to visitors in the Chattanooga area.

Dr. Knittel and Mayor Fuller talked about the growth and progress of the college and the city of Collegedale, showing slides of the community—its industries and homes, etc.—and the buildings of the campus, particularly the new McKee Library, the new Summerour Hall, Wright Hall, and other buildings.

On the same day, the SMC Collegiate Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Marvin Robertson, was seen twice on Channel 9 as part of a series of religious programs.

SMC Represented on GC Committee

Dr. Frank Knittel, Dr. Don Dick and Mr. W. H. Taylor served on a General Conference Committee on guide lines in competitive activities and drama.

Dr. Knittel and Dr. Dick presented papers on drama and Mr. Taylor on competitive activities.

The committee report will go to the General Conference Committee and will ultimately be used as guide lines for all the conferences, churches, and institutions of the world field.

McKee Baking Co. Has New Product

Pro Kee is the name of a new protein product being made by the McKee Baking Company in Collegedale. An extruder machine is used in making the preparation which has a soy bean base and is dehydrated. It will take up three times its weight in water but they recommend only 60%.

Pro Kee is now sold through Collegedale Distributors and also distributors located in Keene, Texas.

The Village Market Bakery is making Pro Kee into a frozen vegetarian meat loaf and patties and selling them in the Village Market. They are also putting the product into loaves of bread.

Several similar products are in the experimental stage at present.

Dr. Oliver Miller, who is in charge of the development, has a doctorate from Texas A and M in food technology.

Faculty Honored; Changes Made

Mrs. Jackson

Dr. Ashton

• MRS. JACKSON

Mrs. Eleanor Hutchinson Jackson came to SMC in 1967 as head of the art department where she has remained until she retired at the end of the 1973 school year. However she was asked to continue teaching until the end of the first semester of this year when a replacement was available.

Mrs. Jackson has an M.A. degree in art from the University of Oregon. She has met some of the requirements for a doctorate at the University of Oregon with graduate work also taken at the University of Maryland, University of Florida, Stetson University, Peabody College and the University of Arizona.

Mrs. Jackson has been a missionary and teacher in Hawaii and Alaska, a Bible instructor in Michigan, taught art at Highland Academy, Forest Lake Academy and Mainland High School before coming to SMC.

Her husband is Elder M. J. Jackson, now retired, but a former pastor and missionary.

• MR. GARREN AND MR. CHILDERS

Mr. Robert Garren is the new head of the art department, replacing Mrs. Eleanor Jackson who has been head of the department since 1967 and is now retired. Mr. Garren has been with the college since 1968 as assistant professor of art, teaching ceramics, sculpture and design.

Mr. Malcolm Childers joined the faculty at the beginning of the second semester to teach drawing and painting. He has a master's degree from Fullerton State University in California and has taught one year at La Sierra College. Mr. Childers had an art show in the McKee Library through the month of January, consisting of seven pieces from his master's show.

• DR. ASHTON

Dr. Bruce Ashton, associate professor of music at Southern Missionary College since 1968, performed with the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra, January 22. He was featured as soloist for "Les Djinns" by Cesar Franck, and as another instrument of the orchestra in Ernest Bloch's "Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra with Piano Obligato." Dr. Ashton received excellent reviews in both of the Chattanooga newspapers.

• DR. CHRISTENSEN

Dr. John Christensen, professor of chemistry at SMC, who has served a total of 18 years at Southern Missionary College, is retiring after 34 years in educational work for the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Dr. Christensen has taught at Shelton Academy in Shelton, Nebraska, Union College in Lincoln, Nebraska, and at Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Michigan.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society and has written for the society and other chemical magazines.

He has served as chairman of the chemistry department at SMC from 1955 to 1973. He retired last spring but continued teaching at the request of the college until someone could be found to relieve him. He is currently working on a book.

Dr. Christensen was born in Minnesota and received a B.A. degree from Union College in 1939, an M.A. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1946, and a Ph.D. from Michigan State University in 1956.

Dr. Christensen

For many years Dr. Christensen has served on a committee of the American Chemical Society, writing an examination for several areas of chemistry. He was chairman of the committee in 1970, during which time his committee produced several standard examinations.

He is married to the former Caroline Lord, and they have one son.

Orchestra Gives Concert

Roger Drinkall, world-renowned violoncello virtuoso and the Symphony Orchestra of Southern Missionary College, under the direction of Conductor Orlo Gilbert, performed at Madison Academy, Memphis and SMC.

The 56 member Symphony Orchestra is one of SMC's outstanding institutions. Due to its college related nature, the orchestra is subject to yearly renewals that change some 20 percent of its body. In spite of that, it is considered to have achieved a remarkable degree of maturity.

Orlo Gilbert, conductor, has been with the orchestra for six years. "Conducting an orchestra today, particularly a college one, is a serious endeavor," says Gilbert. "Orchestras are one of the last strongholds of classical culture, and you wonder how there are still young people willing to undergo its taxing training sessions to perform in this time of dubious cultural values. Indeed, we are fortunate to have that type of student at Southern Missionary College," he adds.

WSMC-FM Gets Special Gift

Just before Christmas, James Hannum, director of WSMC-FM Broadcasting, received a phone call from a Chattanooga resident. "I recently moved into the area from Florida, and find the programming more enjoyable than anything else in the area. I would like to help the station in a substantial way and will be sending you $1,000 worth of DuPont stock."

Hannum, of course, was exuberant. The gentleman had previously joined WSMC-FM's Month Club (a group of people who give at least $5 a month to WSMC-FM), but being interested in the cultural programming of the station, he decided to give a special Christmas gift to WSMC-FM.

Faculty Have Varied Talents

Varied talents turn up in unexpected places among SMC's faculty.

Mr. Kenneth Davis, director of counseling and testing, is just completing work on a sauna bath in a corner of the women's recreation room in the basement of Thatcher Hall. The room itself is 10' x 12' in size, with upper and lower benches on three sides, which can accommodate 15 or 20 young women at a time. The bath has an adjacent dressing room and shower. The $690 heating unit was donated by the Vico Company of California.

The men in Talge Hall have had a sauna since 1970, also made by Mr. Davis. It is open from 12 noon until midnight and is always in use.

Another with an unexpected talent is Dr. Melvin Campbell, head of the chemistry department, who is now teaching badminton as well as chemistry. He learned the game in India where it originated, and took classes and private lessons in how to play it.

Mr. Drew Turlington, chairman of the industrial education department, says he learned to bake bread in Florida during the depression years when money was scarce. Whole wheat flour was also scarce and so he went to feed stores and bought bran and shorts to enrich the white flour.

During World War II, Mr. Turlington made pastries at evacuation hospitals both in France and Germany.

More recently, while he was with the SMC Nicaragua Mission project during the summer, he baked bread and taught student missionaries how to bake bread in an army field range bought from army surplus. He also built cabinets for the kitchen in the mission house and made the counter top 34" high instead of the usual 36" so that it would be easier to knead the dough.

There are other faculty members with unexpected talents, but they are still hidden!
